AVOID "FLU" AND PNEUMONIA BY STERILIZING NOSE

London Epidemic of 1891 Proved OI. Eucalypti (Euca-pine Salve) Is Most Effective Preventive Known.

Get out your jar of Eucapine Salve up, if you have none, go to the nearest drug store at once and get a family jar of this well-known nose and throat sterilizer. Sterilize morning and night by sniffing the Eucapine up into the nostrils and back into the throat, whence it will spread to the larynx and lungs thus sterilizing the nose and throat.

The chief ingredient of Eucapine Salve is OI. Eucalypti, the most powerful antiseptic, whose power to prevent influenza was first discovered in the London epidemic of 1891. In addition, Eucapine Salve contains just enough camphor, menthol and oil of white pine to make it soothing, healing and delightful to use. Even the babies enjoy it. Ask any well-informed physician and he will tell you that Eucapine, though originally designed by the nose and throat specialists for the mother's use with her children in colds, croup and to prevent pneumonia, is the best and most agreeable antiseptic you can use to sterilize the nose and throat of young and old alike.

Note: The application of the product referred to above sterilizes the air passages for about 12 hours against diseases contracted through the nose and throat. Any druggist can supply you for half a dollar.

This woman's tonic has never contained alcohol, consequently has always been the temperance remedy that a woman should take if she's overworked, nervous or rundown.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD.

The modern young woman is often a "bundle of nerves"—"high strung"—fainting spells—emotional—frequently blue and dissatisfied with life. She should be helped by a tonic and nerve tonic that has proven successful for over half a century.

YANKS RUN INTO SOME HOT WORK IN TANK FIGHTING

Birmingham Boy Tells How
He and His "Buddy" Helped to Clear Woods of Huns Near Romagne.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Dec. 12. (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—American fighters in the French two-man tanks ran into some hot work in front of Romagne during the American army's advance along the west bank of the Meuse early in October and Sgt. James Averitt, of Birmingham, Ala., with his "buddy" did their share in giving the Hun his due. Averitt's "buddy" was killed in the thick of the fight by a bullet that entered a deep hole in the side of the tank and struck him fair in the face.

It was during the American "push" in the Argonne sector, Averitt's tank went along with a lot of other "brother" tanks in line with the American infantrymen crowding them in the rear. Averitt was the machine gunner of his tank while his "buddy" ran the engine and steered the tank.

"I was so near a number of Germans encountered in a shallow trench that I could see the terror on their faces when my gun began to let fly bullets almost in their faces," said Sgt. Averitt.

"These were the first bushes I ran into on this drive and I certainly let them have a few just as my old machine could fire, and that was some fast and I just kept going ahead and jumping away until every last one of them was stretched out on the ground."

"Facing beyond this hastily dug trench, beyond my brothers on my right and left and at the same time looking at the doughboys coming up I got sight of a little batch of Germans behind a hump in the hill along the roadway, or what had been a road, way before our heavy artillery opened up that morning. These were machine gunners, I soon learned, and bullets began to splash off the tank's sides, particularly those which struck a glancing blow.

Risked All Four Wheels.

"I ordered my tank 'buddy' to the wheel to keep after those gunners if it cost us all four wheels. He did and we went up after them sort of sideways. I got around to the side of that hump, my brother on the other side was doing the same, and we wiped that bunch out in a jiffy. I believe it was an exhilarating fire, as the officers call it."

Sgt. Averitt explained that the tank men, all of whom were Americans using two-man tanks invented by the French, always watched each other closely, endeavored to the idea being to keep a hundred yards or so apart for their mutual protection, and it being important also that they not get too far ahead of the infantry.

"Just beyond the hump was a clump of woods, and we began to pour bullets into that," Sgt. Averitt continued, "and for a time there was some smoke arising above the tree tops so we knew there were bushes in there. About four of us opened up in full force and showed that woods with lead."

"The machine gun awners were pretty stiff for awhile as we went forward, but I just kept peppering away and talking to my 'buddy' all the time and telling him what we were going to do—clean out that woods. My 'brother' on either side was doing the same thing. The doughboys back of me, too, were firing right along with us and the bushes in that thicket must have thought all hell had broken loose, because, first thing I knew, the firing virtually stopped and I figured all the bushes had been killed or had decided to beat it before we got there in force."

Gave Fritzes Fits.

"Along about this time I noticed that the tank boys on the right were swinging around the side of the clump of trees, and from the position of their guns and the speed of their tanks I judged that they were giving fits to some Fritzes running and dodging as fast as they could. The tank boys switched so as to run along side the thicket, at a distance, and joined the tank boys going around the end."

"Just about that time there was a volley of machine gun bullets, and some anti-tank gun stuff, too, came a bit to my left. Suddenly my tank just began to tremble or something and then stopped and shuddered all over. I looked down and my 'buddy' was limp in his seat. One of those damned bullets had come in through my 'buddy's' peep hole and hit him square in the face."

"My 'buddy' was dead. His final clutch on the throttle shut off the gas and the old tank stopped, and there I was, and the other boys around. That's about all I know about that fight, or whatever it was, and I'm waiting around now for another tank and another 'buddy', too, to take me up front again where things are doing every minute. This tank business is great business for the boys who like to shoot."

Averitt said that when he went into action he determined to keep count of the number of Germans he killed. His machine gun "touched off," but when he began to use his gun he could think of nothing but a purpose—speedy death and destruction and that he quickly lost count of the number he saw fall.

British Hero Of Naval Battle Is American Visitor

CAPT. FRED F. B. CARPENTER.

One of the naval heroes of the war is now in America. He is Capt. Fred F. B. Carpenter, commander of the Vindictive, the British cruiser that led the naval exploit which resulted in the sinking of the German destroyer and submarines in Zebruge harbor last April. Carpenter, as commander of the Vindictive, was the real leader in the exploit, probably the greatest naval exploit of the war.

Carpenter has been sent here by the British government on a special mission. He does not talk of his own part in the victory, but of the work of his men.

Three ships were sunk in the mouth of the harbor to bottle up the German fleet. These "bloody ships" chosen for only 50 men, just enough to handle them. But after the 50 men were secured for each boat, Carpenter hid himself aboard the vessel to get a chance to go. It was found in checking the exploit that one boat carried 87 men.

The Vindictive's casualty list totaled 100 men. Carpenter was one of those who died when the Vindictive pulled alongside the mole and the men landed to clear the mole of the German forces.

All but 12 of the men killed and wounded were carried aboard the ship.

The Vindictive emerged from the work with her funnels shrouded, her boiler blown away and her superstructure her hull battered by the fire of the German batteries.

Carpenter received his captaincy as a result of the exploit. He was also decorated with the Victoria cross, the cross de guerre, with palms and other medals.

BRITISH HOLD YANKS IN HIGHEST RESPECT

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—In a letter just received here, Mrs. R. L. Miller, chairman of the British Red Cross at Wimbledon Park, London, relates an incident which illustrates how the British soldiers regarded the American fighters.

Austin Harding and Arnold Morton, young Englishmen and real heroes since the war, Mrs. Miller writes "Enlisted on the same day, they served in the same company, shared the same hardships and enjoyed their furloughs together."

"One day, on the eve of his furlough, young Harding lay dying in the arms of his pal. 'I can't go home with you this time, old friend, but you mustn't grieve,' he said. 'Fritz finally got me, but the Americans will rally well get Fritz.'"

"The Americans! Wherever I go I hear people talking of the great republic beyond the seas. Is not America today the hope of the world?"

LIST OF PRUSSIAN CRIMES STRIKES HUN PROPAGANDA

Patriotic Societies Sum Up
Law Violations Designated by Germans as "Boysish Pranks of Soldiers."

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—To stamp out propaganda of pro-German organizations in America which have strongly urged greater leniency in dealing with German patriots, societies of the Central West have called attention to the long string of Prussian atrocities that stretch over the four years of war.

The excesses, referred to in Germany by some statesmen as "boysish pranks of the soldiers," included the bombing of hospitals, sinking hospital ships, poisoning wells, bombing cities and villages, burning cathedrals and needlessly murdering women and children in captured territory.

A list of violations of international law intended to show that the treacherous policies of high German officials justified the excesses committed by soldiers in the field opens with the battle on the Belgian frontier on Aug. 2, 1914.

Here in chronological order, are a few of the scores of German crimes against humanity as listed by patriotic organizations:

Sept. 1, 1914, Germans bombed Paris, killing many women and children.

Sept. 2, 1914, American steamer Eversink sunk.

May 7, 1915, liner Lusitania torpedoed and sunk by German submarine, with loss of more than 1,000 lives.

Sept. 1, Ambassador Bernstorff announced German refusal to sink no more liners without warning.

Sept. 3, Germans make air raid on London, killing 26 persons and wounding 100 others, many of them women and children.

Oct. 12, Edith Cavell executed by Germans.

Nov. 3, Italian liner Ancona torpedoed and sunk.

March 24, 1916, Steamer Sussex torpedoed and sunk.

Oct. 8, German submarine sank six merchant steamships off Nantucket, Mass.

Nov. 4, submarine sinks British passenger steamer Arabia.

Nov. 7, Cardinal Mercier protests against German deportation of Belgian civilians.

Nov. 21, British hospital ship Britannia sunk in Aegean sea.

Jan. 31, 1917, Germany announces unrestricted submarine warfare.

Feb. 28, Secretary Lansing exposes Zimmerman attempt to effect a Mexican-Japanese-German alliance against America.

Nov. 1, Secretary Lansing exposes Lusitania "apologies" note.

March 18, 1918, German long-range gun shells Paris.

March 2, long-range gun kills 72 church-goers in Paris on Good Friday.

The list further shows that up to the last hour of fighting, the German soldiers continued committing excesses against prisoners and inhabitants of occupied territory.

BARGES FOR RIVER TRAFFIC ORDERED

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 12.—Barges enough to transport 3,000 carloads of tonnage monthly between St. Louis and New Orleans will be speedily constructed, according to an announcement by Theodore Brent, traffic manager of the Mississippi and Warrior rivers section, United States railroad administration. The announcement followed a conference with James E. Smith, president of the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association, and A. W. Mackie, local manager of the Mississippi and Warrior rivers section.

Mr. Brent later went to Washington to discuss with railroad administration officials the question of joint rail and water rates.

On Oct. 11 application was made for joint rates on all classes of commodities, domestic, import and export, between New Orleans and points in Louisiana taking New Orleans rate, points on the Mississippi between New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., points in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and Missouri, and Omaha, Neb., and points in Indiana, within the Chicago switching district, including Gary.

Between all points mentioned it is expected that river rates will be 20 per cent lower than rail rates on all commodities, Mr. Smith said.

SUGGESTS HONOR DAY FOR RETURNING TROOPS

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—An "honor day" at intervals of about one month has been proposed by Capt. Myron E. Adams for welcoming the thousands of soldiers and sailors who will be returning during the coming year. A big meeting will be held on "honor day" and attended by all men who had returned during the previous month.

"It is a fine idea and it offers a chance to add a very practical side to the welcome," said C. O. Frisbie of the Chicago Band association. He said bringing the men together would give draft officials a good opportunity to check up those without jobs and extend aid to them. Frisbie has been chosen chairman of the committee handling the home-coming of Col. Henry J. Kelly's 14th field artillery.

Mrs. George McKinley, head of the Red Cross canteen on the lake front said "it appealed to men especially as affording everybody in Chicago an opportunity to have part in the program of welcome."

Apple Dumplings.

One cup sugar (brown is best), one-half cup butter, one cup water. Boil to a good syrup. Slice and dice two small tart apples. Make a batter of one cup flour, one tablespoon baking powder, a pinch salt, add water to make a soft batter. Dip in fried apples to batter. Drop into hot syrup one spoonful at a time. Bake 20 minutes or until apples are soft. Add any flavor preferred. To be eaten with whipped cream or sugar and cream. This will serve four or five persons.
